

Home Performance Technician

Aiello Home Services is an industry leader and progressively growing HVAC, Plumbing, Electrical & Home Energy Auditing Company.

We are currently recruiting and accepting applications for BPI certified, Home Performance Technicians. In addition to that we are also recruiting non-certified individuals who have an interest in the profession and would like more experience in the field as well as the opportunity to become certified.

Responsibilities:

Work under the Home Performance Manager and within the Home Performance Department. Successfully complete utility based full energy assessments, as well as analyze efficiency of HVAC equipment. Identify areas of improvement and create solutions to deliver more energy efficiency within the home.

Train and become proficient in whole house performance which includes heat loss, air exchanges, and insulation R – ratings. Identify energy efficiency with HVAC and domestic hot water systems. Improve home performance by providing air sealing and insulation measures. Perform minor duct repair and modifications for more air flow and insulation around ductwork. Assist in identifying new window replacement possibilities as well as proper installation of construction windows. Diagnose and report any home efficiency loss. Deliver and execute all home energy improvements that will provide better comfort and lower energy bills.

Qualifications:

The position requires a personable, energetic individual that is hard working and able to communicate with homeowners in a friendly manner as well as work independently and as part of a team. The candidate must be open to initial and ongoing training coming into the company, as well as looking for personal growth within the company. The ideal candidate with proper training will be willing to accept promotions with new responsibilities. The work environment is fast paced and involves strong computer skills to execute each audit successfully. BPI Certification, Lead RRP, and DOE are a necessity. HVAC apprentices and non-trade candidates are welcome to apply to this high growth position.

If you are looking for great benefits, excellent wages and the opportunity to grow with a great company, APPLY NOW!